

Kenton County Public Library

Newspaper Index Times

Your First Stop for Local History Research

www.kentonlibrary.org/genealogy/

859/962-4070 or 962-4085

Spring 2009

502 Scott Blvd., Covington, Kentucky 41011

What Does the Index Cover?

A few statistics

Articles indexed	More than 1,000,000
Subject headings	More than 704,500
Full text newspapers in the index	37,000

Full Text: Wave of the Future

As you may note from the above statistics, the newspaper index contains full text articles. These are PDF scans of the actual newspapers that are attached to the relevant

The Kenton County Public Library Newspaper Index covers the years 1835-1933 and 1982-Present. Our staff is working diligently to fill-in the remaining years.

In addition to the Kentucky Enquirer and the Kentucky Post, many other smaller

Northern Kentucky newspapers are also indexed including, but not limited to:

Daily Commonwealth
Covington Journal
Sunday Challenger
Newport Local
Kentucky State Journal
Ticket

subjects. The PDFs are linked so that you may click on them and open the document, essentially granting yourself the ability to read that paper anywhere. Currently, it is only older papers that are full text, but we are working on adding more all the time. [Note: Requires a PDF reader on the PC.]

Resources

Please stop by the Kentucky History Reference Desk at the Covington Branch of the Kenton County Public Library if you have questions. You can also reach us by phone at 859.962.4070 or by emailing us at history@kentonlibrary.org

What can I find in the newspaper?

Whether looking to supplement genealogical research or merely satisfy personal curiosity, the newspaper is your friend. Are you looking for Grandma Miller's obituary? The newspaper may have your answer. Looking for that photo of Aunt Milly at Riverfest? Try the newspaper. Trying to locate the date cousin Tom was elected to city newspaper is one of your council? Guess where. The best sources for information. And how do you find information in the newspaper? Well, short of going page by page through the paper, the index is your best friend. Utilizing the power of the newspaper index, you should be able to find all of the above information quickly and easily.

