STATISTICS

Statistics:

Articles Indexed - 1,119,150

Subject Headings - 982,900

Full text - 38,099

Years:

1835-1941

As you may note from the above statistics, the newspaper index contains full text articles.

These are PDFs of the actual newspapers that are attached to the relevant subjects. The PDFs are linked so that you may click on them and open the document, essentially granting yourself the ability to read that paper anywhere.

Currently, it is only older papers that are full text, but we are working on adding more all the time.

WHAT CAN I FIND?

Whether looking to supplement genealogical research or merely satisfy personal curiosity, newspapers can be a great starting point.

Are you looking for Grandma Miller's obituary?
The newspaper may have your answer.

Looking for that photo of Aunt Milly at Riverfest?
Try the newspaper.

Trying to locate the date cousin Tom was elected to city newspaper is one of your council?
Guess where.

The best sources for information.

And how do you find information in the newspaper?
Well, short of going page by page through the paper, the index is your best friend.

Utilizing the power of the newspaper index, you should be able to find all of the above information quickly and easily.
